Satan's contractual tools. Jehovah's Witnesses rely on separating the reader from Wisdom to win. God says, Boom Baby!

"This does mean that when you are single, you do not get to imagine."

(Hear God say, There we go.)

This does not mean when you are single you get to imagine, is the Jehovah's Witness way to word the same thing. The opposite Jehovah's Witness way to word the sentence is, this does not mean when you are single you do not get to imagine. God says, Get it? Truth of lies. It is sleight of hand with words. Satan's contractual tool.

"They have people at war with one another over the same thing from both sides of their mouth."

mac to God

"I hate that religion. If I haven't made myself clear to someone, I hate that religion, they are popping the Wave"

God to mac

Another way to write the opening sentence is, You do not get to imagine when you are single. mac still likes letting the reader with Wisdom understand, with God there is advantage to being single

Write the Regular Expression

With this key, loop through their legal arguments with regular expressions searching the key negatives surrounding subjects and verbs. Then, loop through these with a mapping algorithm identifying argument type noting double negative and positive expressions. Then examine the context.

O'Riley, Mastering Regular Expressions is an outstanding guide for this puzzle. You can even use a basic search function to tease these out of documents without writing a looping script in a foreign language. With this you can easily key Satan's language to what the reader with Wisdom understood.

Jehovah's Witnesses rely on separating the reader from Wisdom to win. (You heard what God just said.) In a future article we will cover, Snow Jobs.
